Master Classes for young professionals in the port related and maritime industry.

Netherlands Maritime University (NMU) and "Jong Havenvereniging" (association for young port professionals) start Master Classes for young professionals who work in and around the port.

The objective of this new initiative is to offer a platform for knowledge sharing and in-depth knowledge transfer of diverse maritime and port related subjects for maritime and port professionals.

The Master Classes are based on the different courses that are offered by NMU's (part-time) Master Shipping and Transport. Leading maritime experts and associate lecturers from NMU combine theory and practice into an interesting and diverse (evening) program. Every meeting will focus on a different topic.

The Master Classes are organised once every five to six weeks. This year two Master Classes will be combined with the monthly networking drinks of Jong Havenvereniging.

The first Master Class will take place on 19 May 2011. Registration for Master Classes can be done through masterclass@stc-nmu.eu.

Netherlands Maritime University (NMU), established in 2006, is a specialised educational institute founded by the STC-Group. It offers a full-time program at two locations in the world: in Rotterdam, the Netherlands and in Gwangyang, South-Korea. NMU offers the part-time Master program in Shipping and Transport exclusively at its main location in Rotterdam.

STC-Group, which has its headquarters in Rotterdam, is the global leader in education, training and research and consultancy services for operations and management positions in the field of shipping, transport and logistics.

Jong Havenvereniging is a network for young professionals working in and around the port of Rotterdam. Founded in 2008 as a part of the 70-years old Havenvereniging Rotterdam, Jong Havenvereniging now has over 300 members working at 120 companies in Rotterdam. Jong Havenvereniging connects young professionals and facilitates their network in the port through different activities, such as networking events, drinks and other activities.
